Du Pont buys Pine Hills site

The Du Pont Company has purchased the 25-acre Pine Hills Hotel property and 207 adjoining lots in the Pine Hills Bay Subdivision from Sun Belt Properties, Inc. of Toronto, Canada.

The property was purchased from Sun Belt Properties after the Canadian corporation had exercised its option to buy from the Shelly Plantation Venture Group in Ocean Springs.

The company has no plans for developing the property. "The acreage will be a part of plant property that forms a 'good neighbor' buffer zone between manufacturing operations and the surrounding community," said Settles.

Saturday election schedules reported

The qualification deadline for those intending to run for the Mississippi House of Representatives District No. 12 post is 5 p.m. Monday.

Winter for Saturday
The election will fill the post vacated by J. P. Combs, who resigned to accept an assistant attorney position with the U.S. Coast Guard.

Will be a part of plant property that forms a "good neighbor" buffer zone between manufacturing operations and the surrounding community," said Settles.

Board to consider options on sewage effluent treatment

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
A State Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Pollution Control official plans to ask the Mississippi Pollution Control Permit Board Tuesday what methods for discharging treated Waveland and Bay St. Louis sewage are acceptable.

John McCarty, a BPC project engineer assigned as coordinator to the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District, said at a Wednesday night meeting of the District Board of Directors that he would present five methods for discharging effluent from the Bay and Waveland sewage treatment facilities.

The district had originally planned to extend the end of Waveland's effluent line from Edwards Bayou and the Bay's line from Watts Bayou to Jourdan River at Cherry Lane off Jourdan River Road.

But about 100 angry homeowners living in the vicinity of present and proposed sewage discharge points appeared at a recent public hearing in Waveland regarding the district's sewerage plans and voiced their objections to the extensions to the Jourdan.

The residents feel the extensions will result in pollution of the Jourdan which they value as a prime recreational area.

Because of the public outcry, the wastewater board Wednesday night scheduled another hearing for 7 p.m. Feb. 6 at American Legion Post No. 77 hall on Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

McCarty said Wednesday that he would ask the permit board to determine the environmental acceptability of five discharge methods which include the original plan, maintaining the present discharge points, an upland spray irrigation method, deep well injection, and emission into the Mississippi Sound or the bay.

"We will get some feeling on what is and what is not permissible," he stated regarding the permit board hearing.

Michael Anthony, representing the Jourdan residents, suggested the irrigation method as an acceptable long-range alternative for wastewater treatment for the two cities.

He noted the City of Ocean Springs is planning to utilize the irrigation method to dispose its sewage plant effluent in the Mississippi Sand Hill Crane National Wildlife Refuge 10 miles away and construct the system with 85 percent matching federal funds.

The cities of Houston, Chicago and Tallahassee are utilizing the irrigation method, Anthony added.

Mayor John Longo of Waveland, wastewater board chairman, endorsed the suggestion and said about 15 years ago a proposal was offered to utilize the irrigation method by unifying the Bay and Waveland treatment systems, but the two cities could not resolve differences regarding the idea at that time.

He said somewhere in the National Space Technology Laboratories Acoustic Buffer Zone might be an ideal place to utilize the spray method.

Longo noted St. Regis and International Paper Companies both own large tracts of land in the buffer zone which would be suitable for such a facility.

The mayor said studies have shown the spray method in a forest area will result in pine growth in one year equivalent to development during a three-year period.

He speculated the irrigation system would cost the wastewater district the same as the Jourdan extensions because federal funding would be at a rate of only 55 percent for that project.

Ray Eaton of Lewis-Eaton Partnership of Jackson, the district's engineering firm, said preliminary plans and a survey could be completed for the irrigation method in time for the Feb. 6 hearing because his company has designed such a facility for Crystal Springs.

McCarty and Longo both noted the public hearing would help determine what disposal method the wastewater district would utilize.

The BPC engineer reported documents which contain the bureau's replies to objections voiced by citizens at the first public hearing will be displayed in the Bay and Waveland City Halls, the County Courthouse, City-County Library in the Bay and the Waveland Library during the two weeks prior to the Feb. 6 public hearing.

Jean Longo, a wastewater district employee, noted areas with septic tanks also warranted study.

Anthony agreed and noted the Jourdan area is classified as a marshland.

McCarty said a sewage collection system in the Jourdan area should be considered sometime in the near future because septic tanks probably do not operate properly in the relatively low-lying area.

Bay City Judge rules not guilty in Sycamore Street obstruction case

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
Dennis Lewis and Troy Saucier were found not guilty Wednesday in Bay St. Louis City Court of obstructing public streets and sidewalks on Dec. 28 at the intersection of Sycamore Street and St. Francis Street.

The two men were arrested by Captain Robert Butler of the Bay St. Louis Police Department who testified he found the defendants leaning against a fence belonging to the Housing Authority.

Housing Authority Executive Director Carol Morris had earlier complained to police officials about continuous problems with the fence being damaged.

"We can't keep a fence up," she said.

"It's costing us a lot of money."

She had signed a "John Doe" affidavit, she said, hoping it would enable the police to help solve the problem.

William M. Frisbie, attorney for the defendants, pointed out, however, that "there is nothing in the affidavit about leaning on a fence."

The two men were arrested for "willfully and unlawfully" obstructing traffic.

Morris testified that she had not witnessed the incident and did not know where the men were arrested.

"I didn't see them. I just signed the affidavit," she said.

Civil Defense planning volunteer rescue units

Bay-Waveland-Hancock County Civil Defense will hold a public meeting on Thursday, Jan. 19 at 6 p.m. at the Civil Defense Office in the Valena C. Jones Center on Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis.

This meeting is for volunteers who have their own boats or access to a boat.

"The purpose is evacuation of low lying areas where we have had serious flooding in the past, such as Shoreline Park, Garden Isles, Pearlington, Kiln, and other areas of the county," said CD Director Robert Boudin.

"Also, we need people who are interested in search and rescue on the Pearl River, Jourdan River, the Bay area and the Louisiana marsh," he added.

"At this meeting we want to set up teams for different areas of the county," Boudin continued.

"If you have ever been stranded in a boat, you know how helpless you are to the weather. How good it would be to see fellow Civil Defense volunteers from Hancock County coming to your rescue," Boudin stated.

"If for any reason you cannot attend this meeting but would like to be a volunteer and have a boat, please call our office at 467-9226," he urged.

WASTEWATER ALTERNATIVES—Hearings are prepared by the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District Board of Directors meeting Wednesday night at Waveland City Hall regarding possible options available to the district for discharging effluent from city treatment facilities in the Jourdan River area. Monday morning fire guts Lakeshore trailer

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
The family of Daniel Gagnon lost everything Monday, Jan. 2, when the trailer they were renting was destroyed by fire, according to Daniel's wife, Theresa.

"Our baby (Nicole, age three) would have died if she had been in her own room," Mrs. Gagnon said Saturday morning.

Mrs. Gagnon said two friends spent the night with the Gagnon family at the trailer on Lake Shore Road behind Chink and Ruth's Lounge.

When Mrs. Gagnon got up to get Nicole, who was crying, the trailer was a "little smoky," she said.

Because she had been having trouble with a heater for some time, she turned it off.

When the trailer cleared of smoke, she turned it back on and took Nicole back to bed with her.

"The next thing I know, our friends were yelling at us to get up."

"And the baby's room was in flames by then," she said.

The fire, which Mrs. Gagnon said was discovered about 7:30 a.m., consumed the trailer quite rapidly.

"It went up in about seven minutes," she said.

Monroe LaFontaine, owner of the trailer, said there was running water in the trailer but that outside pipes were frozen, thwarting firefighting efforts by the Clearmont Harbor Fire Department.

LaFontaine said windows in the trailer next door cracked from the intensity of the fire.

Mrs. Gagnon said their television "blew up" from the heat.

Mrs. Gagnon believes the fire was caused by the heater.

"I've been telling our landlord for the past three weeks it was acting up," she said.

But Ed Friloux, member of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Action Squad, said Saturday his investigation shows that the fire began when a burner on the stove overheated, melting a pot.

"The first thing we look at is shape and color of appliances," he said.

"If we find nothing irregular there, then the next thing we look at is shape and coloring of appliances."

Friloux said deformities, discolorations and depth of char indicated that the fire began on the stove, he said.

Mrs. Gagnon said Nicole has severe bronchitis as a result of smoke inhalation, and that she herself has chemical burns in her eyes plus scratches from debris.

She said her husband is employed two days a week at House of Catfish in Waveland.

"We moved into the trailer from Bay St. Louis on Dec. 8," she said.

"All we have left now are the pajamas we were wearing when the fire occurred."

The Gagnons are staying with Wayne Tyson.

Persons who desire to help the family may call Mrs. Gagnon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Morse of Bay St. Louis, telephone 467-1718.

Louisiana man arrested for Pearlington gun theft

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
Richard A. Breedlove of Bush, La. was arrested about 9:00 p.m. Jan. 5 in Pearlington on charges of grand theft, according to Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Delbert Seay.

The charges stemmed from the theft about three weeks ago of two guns—a blue steel .25 caliber automatic and a 22 caliber automatic rifle—from the home of Mrs. Irma Deleraux in Pearlington.

Breedlove, 56, gave his occupation as a construction superintendent.

According to his statement taken at the time of his arrest, Breedlove took the guns to Slidell and hocked them for $45.

Breedlove was released after posting a $500 bond.

During cross-examination by Frisbie, Butler said there is a "pathway" along the road and that the fence is about ten feet back from the street.

"Tell me how these two gentlemen were impeding, restraining, hindering, stifling and retarding vehicle traffic and pedestrian passage?" Frisbie asked, quoting from the charges against the two men.

"If someone wanted to pass on that pathway, they'd have to go around them," Butler responded.

"Didn't they have a right to stand there?" Frisbie asked.

"If someone had to walk by them, they would have to walk in the street and that could hinder vehicle traffic," Butler said.

"Was there any hindrance of vehicles or passengers?" Frisbie asked.

"Not at that particular time," Butler said.

Following testimony by Morris and Butler, Frisbie asked that charges be dismissed.

Judge Joseph H. Benvenuti agreed that "the burden of proof has not been met in this particular case" and found the men not guilty.

Morris said Friday that the fence has had to be repaired a number of times in the past five or six years, and that she doesn't know what to do about it.

"I think it's probably happening late at night," she said.

"I don't know that it's happening during the day."

She said police officials had suggested the John Doe affidavit.

"I thought the police should be aware of the problem," she said. "I thought the affidavit would help them."

In other city court business, several charges for minor traffic violations were dropped after the judge accepted explanations from the alleged violators.

Charges against a 14-year-old youth for operating a moped without a license were dropped when his mother testified she did not know that a license was required or that licenses could not be issued to persons under the age of 15.

She told Benvenuti the moped would be taken to the country and would not be used by her son in city streets.

Ochsner institutions to mount unique World's Fair exhibit

THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, JANUARY 8, 1984-34

The Ochsner Clinic and Alton Ochsner Medical Foundation will underscore their reputation for innovation in 1984 with an unprecedented presence at the World's Fair. In addition to being the official provider of medical services at the Louisiana World Exposition, the internationally famed institutions will present what's likely to be one of the most striking exhibits at the fair—a forty-foot high replica of the human heart.

Ochsner is apparently the first individual medical complex ever to mount a major display at a world's fair. The exhibit is an inflatable structure which combines anatomical detail with a light show illustrating the path of blood through the heart. At the base of the heart will be a heart-related display. Ochsner officials say the exact content of that exhibit is still being determined. Lester Associates, Inc., of West Nyack, N.Y., an industrial design firm, is the contractor of the unique project. Ochsner's participation as a World's Fair exhibitor is an outgrowth of its selection as the exposition's official provider of medical services. Ochsner will staff a full-scale emergency service in the main exhibit hall at the fair. Small cart-type ambulance vehicles will provide on-site transport for fairgoers or personnel in need of medical care. Ambulances will be stationed at the emergency center to permit transportation of seriously ill patients to area hospitals.

Participation in the LWE is only one aspect of Ochsner's program of innovation for 1984. Like Mayo, Cleveland, Scripps and other major referral centers, Ochsner has announced plans to establish several satellite clinics providing primary care to the community. The first disclosure of those plans in a recent issue of 'Modern Healthcare' magazine did not specify when or where those clinics would be located.

Ochsner spokesmen say the clinic and hospital also expect to "add significantly" in the coming year to the enrollments in the institutions' Preferred Provider Organization (PPO). The PPO program announced its first signing in December—the Jefferson Parish Sheriff's office, which has some 4,000 employees and dependents in its self-insurance program.

A PPO is an arrangement between a business and a medical provider in which discounts and other cost-cutting measures are offered in return for expedited payment. Employees are encouraged to seek their medical care at the institution offering the PPO. To date, Ochsner offers the only formal PPO program in the New Orleans area. Ochsner reports that it is in "advanced stages" of negotiation with other employers representing more than 10,000 employees.

Ochsner has also announced plans to expand its involvement in basic research to include two new fields—Molecular Biology, which is concerned with the genetic "programming" of cells and understanding of the chemical functioning of cells, and Cellular Immunology, which deals with the way cells react to foreign substances and protect themselves from injury by anti-bodies. First-year funding for these programs will exceed $1.3 million.

Also in the field of basic research, the National Institutes of Health have assured a continuation of studies at Ochsner which led to the discovery of what appears to be at least one of the means by which the human body maintains normal blood pressure. A $180,000 grant by the NIH will underwrite for the next three years the study of a naturally occurring diuretic identified by Ochsner investigators in human heart cells.

The new year will also see Ochsner's Community Clinical Oncology Program (CCOP) hitting full stride. Ochsner was one of the charter participants named to the program by the National Cancer Institute in 1983. The program provides quicker access to newly developed cancer-treating drugs and other therapies for CCOP participants. Ochsner is the only Gulf South medical center to be named to the program, which marks a substantial departure in previous national policy of funding only basic research.

Completion of the $10 million six-story renovation and expansion of Ochsner's Brent House Hotel is scheduled for the first 60 days of the new year. It will add 118 rooms to the existing 280-room facility. There will also be a swimming pool, a six-story-high patio, and meeting rooms in the expanded hotel. The Brent House provides a place to stay adjacent to the clinic and hospital for ambulatory and convalescent patients and their families who travel to Ochsner from the Gulf South and Latin America for medical care.

Among other milestones marked by Ochsner in 1983 were:

—The granting of the most prestigious medical award in the Western hemisphere to Dr. Merrill O. Hines, honorary board chairman of the Alton Ochsner Medical Foundation. Dr. Hines received the American Medical Association's 1983 Distinguished Service Award. Dr. Hines, whose career at Ochsner spans 37 years, is the fourth winner of the award to have Ochsner connections—a number matched only by Mayo Clinic recipients.

—Installation of the first computerized anesthesia monitoring system in the Deep South. The computerized mass spectrometer system, called SARA, performs an analysis of gases inhaled and exhaled by a patient under anesthesia every minute and a half—at least ten times faster than by traditional blood gas analysis. This patient safety system covers 24 operating rooms, making the Ochsner

SARA installation the most extensive in the nation.

—Implementation of the first system in the area for breaking up kidney stones with ultrasound. The device, called a "percutaneous nephroscope" permits the removal of kidney stones without major surgery for many patients, reducing hospital stays, costs, postoperative pain and recuperation time.

—Opening of the hospital's new $3.4 million women's wing, featuring a homelike birthing room, an additional delivery room and two new labor rooms. The unit also provides a new family waiting room, new nurseries for full-term babies and a recovery room for babies not yet ready for the nursery, but not in need of intensive care.

—Establishment of a special unit for the long-term psychiatric treatment of adolescent and young women—one of few such units in the nation. It deals with problems ranging from depression to anorexia nervosa.

Borg-Warner benefits Coast to tune of $5.4 million

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

Some 95 percent of the $1.5 million that Borg-Warner's Hancock County plastics plant expends annually for supplies, repair material and outside service goes to Gulf Coast businesses, Plant Manager Leo B. Kowal said Thursday.

In addition, the area benefits from some $1.4 million expended annually for electricity and fuel oil and $2.5 million for payroll and benefits.

Borg-Warner Chemicals, Inc., which began operations at Port Blenville Industrial Park in March 1982 and is the only Fortune 500 company in the county, currently employs 50 people, with an additional 20 brought in approximately every two months to do maintenance and overhaul work, Kowal said.

About 90 percent of the employees are local residents, Kowal said.

Borg-Warner recently announced a $20 million construction project to expand its facility.

Construction for expansion is scheduled to begin in late 1984.

The expansion, Kowal said, will increase capacity by 50 million pounds annually, and will increase permanent personnel by up to 25 people.

In addition, some 200 to 300 workers will be hired for the construction project.

The Hancock County plant is actually part of one of six divisions of Borg-Warner Corporation, a holding company with headquarters in Chicago.

The other divisions deal with financial services, protective services, transportation equipment, air-conditioning and industrial products.

In addition to the Mississippi plant, Borg-Warner Corporation has U.S. plants in Parkersburg, W.V.; Morgantown, W.V.; Ottawa, Ill.; Oxnard, Cal.; and Spartanburg, N.C.

The holding company also operates plants in Canada, Japan, Holland, Scotland and Australia.

Kowal was manager of the Canadian plant just outside Toronto prior to coming to Hancock County.

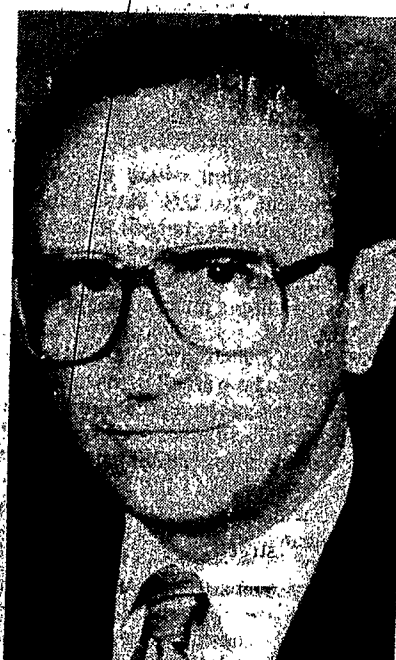

Home office for Borg-Warner Chemicals, Inc. is Parkersburg, W.V.

Kowal said construction began on the Hancock County plant in June 1980 after several years of searching for a Southern site.

The plant, which currently occupies 50 acres on a 205-acre site, now produces 80 million pounds of ABS (acrylonitrile-butadiene-styrene) annually.

"ABS is a tough rigid material used in a number of durable consumer items such as refrigerator interiors, appliance housing, telephones, computers, power tools, automobile interiors and exterior trim, lego blocks, sporting goods, fishing lures and drain, waste and vent pipe," he said.

The plant's annual expenditure for

LEO B. KOWAL,
Borg-Warner Plant Manager

raw materials, Kowal said, is $34 million.

Kowal said the Port Blenville facility is the most modern, automated, computer-assisted facility of Borg-Warner's.

"In fact," he said, "it is probably the finest state-of-the-art plastics plant in this country."

"All liquid tanks are surrounded by a dike wall on a concrete pad. The design is such that each enclosure will hold the tank contents plus 24 hours' worth of rain."

"Even the trucks and rail tankers, that supply raw materials are stationed within a diked area during the unloading period," he said.

Kowal said the production process does not generate any waste water to the surrounding area, marshlands or streams.

"During manufacturing, the process recirculates the unreacted raw materials in a closed system process."

"Like many process industries, during a shutdown or maintenance overhaul the residual raw materials and mixtures are captured in drums," he said. Before the drums are stored, an inhibitor is added to avoid any possibility of reaction.

The handling of this waste, termed hazardous in nature, requires special precaution by trained personnel.

Whenever necessary, Kowal said, respirators are used to protect the personnel.

The material, he said, is no different in nature than gasoline, which everyone breathes when filling their car gas tanks.

"Perhaps everyone should wear a respirator when handling gasoline," Kowal said, noting that California requires that all gas pumps employ a vacuum system at the nozzle to capture the fumes.

One of the raw materials used at the plant, acrylonitrile, is classified as a 'suspect' carcinogen.

Kowal pointed out that 'suspect' carcinogens, like acrylonitrile, bacon and ingredients in some soft drinks are different from 'proven' carcinogens, such as cigarette smoking.

The storage pad for the process waste holds up to 144 drums, Kowal said, although shipments are made when a truckload of 90 drums is accumulated.

"Venting of the drums is controlled on the pad, much the same as a gas cap vent on cars."

Kowal said Borg-Warner measures the level of vapor emissions on the storage pad and it is well below limits established by the Occupational Safety and Health Association (OSHA).

Kowal notes there has not been a single lost-work injury at the Port Blenville facility.

"It's important for the community to know that the plant operates in the best interest of environmental protection and is one of the most sophisticated in the country."

He said the plant is inspected regularly by the Coast Guard, state environmental agencies and the insurance carrier, Awkright of Boston.

A field inspector for Awkright reported recently that "Engineering, management and operating personnel are experienced, well-trained, with a good attitude to loss prevention."

George Morrison, field director for Centaur Engineering, an independent safety and environmental auditor, referred to the Hancock facility as "one of the best programs I've seen on safety, industrial hygiene and environmental protection," according to Kowal.

In addition, Kowal said, the plant is inspected by corporate personnel about every two months.

Kowal said after almost two years the plant has gone through an equipment "debugging" period, including winter freezes and other external challenges.

"Progress has been significant—the operation has already exceeded original design expectations."

The plastics company operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

There is virtually no turnover in plant personnel, perhaps because of the innovative management style.

Kowal said there is no direct supervision of the technicians who operate the facility.

"After extensive training (six months) in technical and interpersonal skills, everyone has the opportunity and, in fact, is expected to get involved in all parts of the business."

"The best improvement suggestions surface from the people closest to the day-to-day operations," he said.

"Everyone is a manager in the facility, accountable to one another for decisions, so everyone impacted by a decision has an input for the final action."

"We feel it takes about five years for people to get to the point where they are really proficient in this management style," Kowal said.

"And we let people make mistakes," he added.

"That's part of the learning experience."

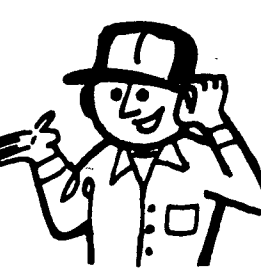

"The economy in general looks positive, and specifically in plastics," he said, "to the extent that additional significant expansion is likely to be announced in 1984."

Borg-Warner Chemicals, Inc., which now has a temporary permit, has applied for a permanent permit to store hazardous waste materials.

A public hearing on the matter will be held Tuesday, Jan. 9 at 7 p.m. at the American Legion Hall in Waveland.

LABORATORIES OF FEDERALISM

Over the course of the nation's history, states traditionally have been recognized as "laboratories of federalism." That is, the states have been the arenas in which new services, new structures, and new organizations of government have been tried.

Those innovative ideas which worked have been passed on to other states, to the federal government, and even to local governments. Those which failed have been duly recorded and placed on the shelf.

As a "laboratory of federalism," or shared government, Mississippi has been a recognized leader in many fields. Mississippi was the first to initiate a state-local government industrial development partnership with its "Balance Agriculture With Industry" program. Mississippi had one of the earliest junior college systems, an effective state and local government effort.

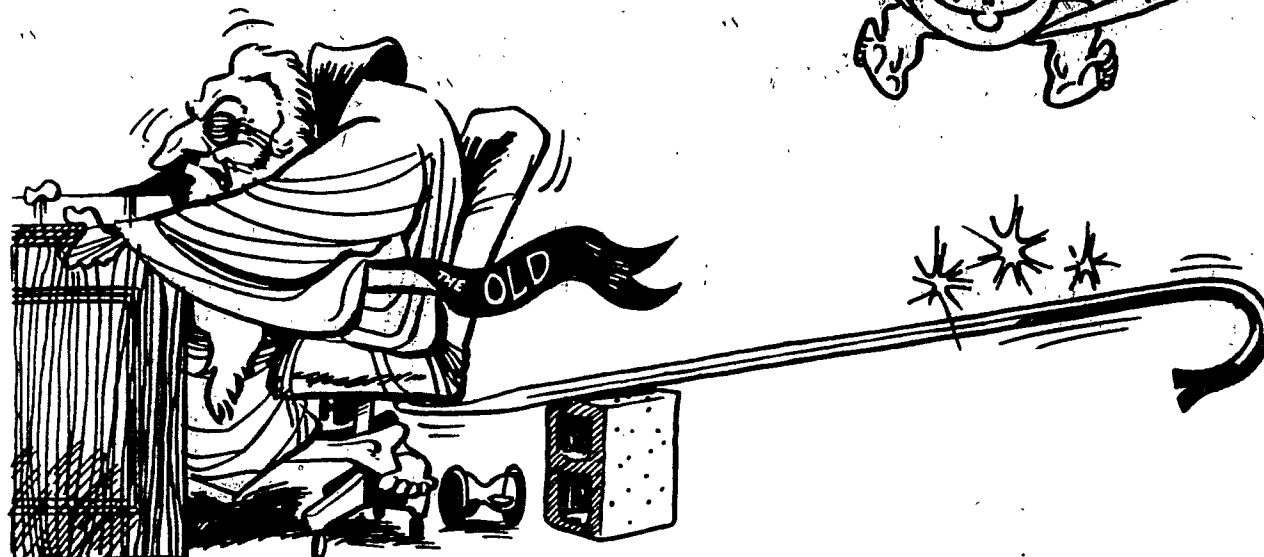

Now the time has come to go back to the lab. There needs to be a reexamination of the relationship between the state and local governments in Mississippi. Local governments need more freedom to move, to plan, and to finance.

The roles of the state and the local governments in education need reevaluation; state restrictions on bonding programs seem too restrictive.

And, state and local governments may want to reexamine the structure of economic development and training programs.

The year 1984 is a good year for Mississippi to go back to the lab, to chart its state-local governmental course for the final year of the century.

Presidential proclamation eyes pregnancy and alcohol

The Committee on Alcoholism & Drug Abuse for Greater New Orleans, a United Way Agency, and "Home of the 524 H-E-L-P Number" has announced that it will be participating in activities during National Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Week.

The awareness week, which is supported by a Joint Congressional Resolution, will be proclaimed by President Reagan for the week of Jan. 15-21.

CADA joins hundreds of other agencies and citizens groups in this national effort to increase awareness of the fetal alcohol syndrome.

Fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS) results from drinking during pregnancy. The fetal alcohol syndrome is a group of birth defects which includes some mental retardation and delayed development; distinctive facial features; possible organic abnormalities; small size (length and width) both before and after birth.

FAS is one of three known causes of mental retardation. Down's syndrome and spina-bifida (severe defect of the spine) are the other leaders.

Of these three birth defects, only FAS is preventable. It is estimated that 1 of every 600 to 1,000 children has FAS. This means between 3,000 and 5,000 of some 3 million babies born in the United States annually.

According to studies, taking a drink now and then during pregnancy does not necessarily mean that defects in the child will result. But the more the mother drinks when she is pregnant, the greater her chances of bearing a baby with alcohol-related birth defects. Reduce drinking and the risk of defects in the baby lessens.

The Committee on Alcoholism offers a number of talks and programs which deal with alcohol, drugs, and pregnancy, and a program can be arranged by calling the CADA office.

FAS is preventable. The surgeon general advises "women who are pregnant (or considering pregnancy) not to drink alcohol beverages and to be aware of the alcoholic content in food and drugs."

Leading experts recommend that women abstain from alcohol when considering conception, during pregnancy, and during lactation. Those who choose to drink, should consult their physicians, and drink very moderately.

The National Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Week is endorsed by the Alcohol and Drug Problems Association (ADPA) and other national organizations concerned with Fetal Alcohol Syndrome.

The National Council on Alcoholism (NCA) and the Alcohol and Drug Problems Association (ADPA) of which CADA is a member, applauds the efforts of the local group as an example of professional involvement in a serious health and community problem.

Information about FAS or a program dealing with alcohol or drugs and pregnancy can be obtained by calling the New Orleans Help Number 1-604-524 H-E-L-P.

SBA Focus on Small Business

U.S. Small Business Administration

Q: I know that within the Federal Government, the U.S. Small Business Administration is charged with helping small business. Are state governments doing anything for small firms?

A: The simple answer is: Yes. SBA's Office of Advocacy works with governors and state officials interested in acting to help small firms. More and more states, realizing that the health of their small businesses are important to state economies, are taking actions to help.

For example, 30 states today have established small business offices. Most of those states have governors' advisory councils and task forces in place to see that small business interests are considered in matters like taxes and regulation.

Through SBA sponsorship, 27 states today have Small Business Development Centers. These centers are established on university and college campuses to offer a wide variety of assistance to small firms and to persons interested in starting their own businesses. Thirty states have created their own advocacy-ombudsman centers to watch out for the needs of small firms.

SBA recently sponsored the fifth annual national conference on the States and Small Business. More than 450 state officials and legislators attended. All this activity reflects the fact that more and more policymakers at all levels of government are coming to appreciate the contributions which small businesses make to our economies.

Q: Is it true that more and more Americans are starting up their own small firms?

A: True. Studies by the Small Business Administration's Office of Advocacy show that there was a net increase of about 400,000 small businesses between 1980-1982.

Of this increase, 379,500 firms had fewer than 20 employees. The number of firms in the largest size class—500 or more employees—declined slightly.

Service industries accounted for more than a third of new growth; among small firms, service industries added 125,300 new businesses. Some business service industries, such as temporary personnel, specialty photocopying, word processing, mailing, and accounting services, face increasing demand as other firms "unbundle" services formerly produced internally.

For information or assistance from SBA in this area, contact Dorothy A. Overall, public information officer, at the agency's Biloxi office, 435-4566.

Lung group offers dial-a-hearing test

DIAL-A-HEARING TEST

Today, more people are handicapped by hearing loss than those having heart disease, cancer, diabetes, and blindness. Deafness is the most common physical disability! More than one out of ten people suffer from hearing loss. Early detection of a hearing problem is vital, if hearing is to be saved.

For those who suspect a hearing loss, the Mississippi Easter Seal Society presents a quick, easy way to test your hearing in the privacy of your own home with the Dial-A-Hearing test.

The Dial-A-Hearing test is intended for early detection and screening purposes only. It is not meant to take the place of a physician's or audiologist's examination but to simply alert people to the need for an examination.

The test will allow one to find out if one is experiencing a hearing loss without expense, and it will help one in deciding the next step to take. The Dial-A-Hearing test will test the listener with four beeps—two different tones at two sound levels. If the listener fails to hear these beeps, they will be advised to consult a physician or audiologist for a complete evaluation.

If one feels like he is missing parts of conversations or if it sounds as if people's words are muffled, then the Dial-A-Hearing test may help. To take a free test, dial 981-6646.

Bay couple finds the 'ideal dog'

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Although their name is Small they think big when it comes to their pets—in this case two mastiffs.

Fred and Midge Small of 106 Beverly Drive in Bay St. Louis own the two female dogs named Caesar's Cleopatra and Lady's Diane, which weigh 180 and 170 pounds, respectively.

At 18-months-old the 'pups' in terms of psychological and physical growth are the equivalent of three-month-old German shepherds, Fred Small says.

Mastiffs complete their growth cycle weighing as much as 250 pounds and are mentally equal to an eight-month-old German shepherd at the age of three years, he reports.

The large and relatively rare dogs will live eight to 10 years depending on the amount of exercise and care they receive, Small notes.

Caesar's Cleopatra and Lady's Diane are allowed to roam freely in and around the Small's elegant home.

Inside, the dogs enjoy chewing ice and having their backs scratched by their loving owners.

Outdoors in hot or cold weather, the two pets enjoy romping in the swimming pool or snapping at a garden hose spray provided by their master.

The pets eat 25 pounds of dry food, several vitamin supplements, about 14 cans of dog food and innumerable ice cubes each week, Small says.

The Smalls in February paid $600 for each dog to a friend in Slidell before the animals were even born and acquired the then two-month-old pups July 4.

Unborn mastiff puppies can cost as much as $900 each, puppies sell from $900 to $2,000 and a stud fee of $1,000 is a normal price, Fred Small says.

He also reports there are only about 2,200 of these dogs in the United States.

Why own such costly pets?

Fred Small says he has always been a dog lover and the mastiffs exhibit 22 positive attributes which he has formulated over the years for pets.

Those qualities include not much exercise needed, enjoys indoors, does not shed, does not slobber or jump on people, does not fight with other dogs, fabulous with children, not rambunctious, very affectionate, protective and

'the bigger the better.'

Small says the two dogs are very sensitive and can easily determine their owners' moods.

"You can't scold them or if you say no to them, they go into a fit of depression," he states.

Spanking his dogs is strictly out of the question and they are difficult to train, he says.

"They're protective of property and if they're let out they won't leave our property," Small states.

Mastiffs will instinctively protect their owners and particularly female humans, Small reports.

Small says his mastiffs will even bark at him and his wife when they return home from an outing until they speak to the dogs.

"They are a marvelous security system, are inseparable, groom each other and their hearing is acute," he states.

The dogs also love cold weather and romping in water year-round, Small adds.

Small reports the mastiff breed originated in Tibet where they were raised for probably 4,000 years, but the dogs' recorded history only reaches back about 400 years.

The named mastiff means mongrel, he adds.

Mastiffs later became popular as lion-fighting dogs of the Roman Empire, Small says.

At that time the female mastiffs would usually weigh 200 pounds and the males would top 300 pounds, Small reports.

He explains the Romans would pit a lion against a mastiff in the arena, but the dog would generally be killed by the strong cat.

Then another mastiff would be placed in the arena and would invariably kill the then battle weary lion, Small says.

The mastiffs then gained popularity in England, but with food rationing during World War II the dogs' numbers dwindled to about 35 in that country, he reports.

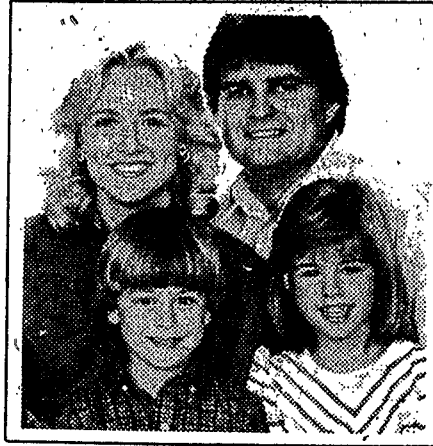

After the war, several of the surviving dogs were brought to America where they were bred extensively.

Small, a retired federal government employee, is a member of the Mastiff Club of America.

Midge Small is a nurse.

Vicki Novak of Gulfport is president of the southeast chapter of the club, he adds.

Southern Association Ok's Hancock schools

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, through its Commission on Elementary Schools, has awarded continuing accreditation to Hancock County School District by action taken during the Association's 88th Annual Meeting in New Orleans Dec. 11-14.

Through accreditation, school staff and faculty members will benefit by knowing that conditions for teaching in accredited schools meet certain minimum standards and that efforts are continuously made to improve these conditions. Regional standards require adequate facilities and facilities and their effective use.

Citizens are assured of accountability and of value for their tax dollars through the process of standard setting and the regular reevaluation of SACS member institutions. Communities with accredited schools can be confident that their institutions compare favorably with others in the tists and other experts use to reveal all its facets.

Subjects will range from those involving the humanities, arts and sciences.

The first program, "Time and Light," examines how the sweep of time is measured not only by man but also by plants and animals, and it also looks at how man has used light as an artistic and practical tool.

Growing Child

One of the major obstacles to harmonious relationships among siblings is the constant arguing, bickering, and fighting that goes on between them.

You probably won't be able to eliminate all such interaction, but you can help your children learn to settle their disputes in constructive ways. This will help them understand and feel better about each other so they'll be less apt to fight when they disagree (perhaps even when you are not around as well!).

Following are some guidelines from Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, to help you help your children settle their disputes more amicably and with respect for each other.

"When your children argue or fight over something, try to get the whole story of what caused the problem before jumping to conclusions and blaming or punishing anyone. Even in a situation where a child seems to hurt a younger sibling who can't tell his side of the story, give the child a chance to tell hers.

For example, say to her, "You must really have been mad at the baby to hit him," and then let her explain. Let her know her angry feelings are acceptable but that you can't let her hit him.

"In an argument between two children who can both talk, give each a chance to tell her point of view. You can help this process by describing the situation rather than judging it:

"It looks like you two can't agree on which television program to watch. You both seem pretty upset. Want to tell me about it? Laurie, you go first. Then Joey, I want to hear your side of the story."

This kind of approach will save a lot of hurt feelings and resentment between children, and it will help them learn to settle disputes themselves without fighting.

"After each child has had a chance to tell her or his point of view in a dispute, help each also see the other's side of the situation.

If you try to convince a child (or an adult) that the other person is right, she will resist you because you're saying at the same time that she is wrong.

On the other hand, if you can show each child that you understand and accept her side, then she'll be more willing to also listen to the other's side.

At this point, with your continuing help in translating each child's feelings to the other as needed, they should be able to work out some sort of compromise.

You've helped them over this particular conflict and shown them a model they can learn to use to settle differences in the future, both with each other...and with others.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information and a free sample newsletter, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620, Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

ETV Brief

ALCOHOLISM MYSTERY
In a new documentary, "Nova" examines the many aspects of alcoholism—medical, historical and social—at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 10 on the Mississippi ETV Network.

In a culture in which alcohol is socially acceptable, the search for a scientific understanding of alcoholism is as complex as the disease.

"Alcoholism: Life Under the Influence" points out that, until recently, the alcoholic personality was considered weak and defective, but new evidence suggests that no such personality exists.

Today medical research is revealing that there may well be a genetic basis for the disease and that children could be screened for it.

This emerging development holds profound implications for preventative treatment in the future. But until these screening tests are developed, finding and treating the alcoholic patient remains one of the most pervasive frustrations in American health care.

MAGIC FLUTE
"Great Performances" presents the Salzburg Festival production of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" at 8 p.m., Monday, Jan. 9 on the Mississippi ETV Network.

The two-act opera, staged by Jean Pierre Ponnelle and directed by Brian Large ("The Ring"), is set in an imaginary Egypt.

James Levine leads the Vienna Philharmonic and an international cast that includes Thomas Gottschalk performs.

Start the New Year with sensible diet

By Ann O. Rushing
Extension Marketing Specialist

As the bells toll and another New Year rolls in, many resolutions have been percolating for a few hours or days.

In most households the two areas of extensive trimming will be the waistlines and food budgets. These two reductions do complement each other in some respects.

Exercise caution in waistline reduction. If an extensive diet is desired, be sure to check with a physician before carrying out plans. On the other hand, if the resolution calls for a 'hold the line' on the waistline or losing from five to ten pounds, a few guidelines will be helpful.

Calories do count in the 'weighing game.' They are units of heat energy that can be stored in the form of adipose (fat) tissue when they exceed your body's energy needs.

By reducing your intake 500 calories below the normal daily intake, you can subtract 3,500 calories a week. This is equivalent to the loss of one pound of body fat. When 35,000 calories are deleted from the food intake there is an anticipated ten-pound loss of body weight.

Budget a 'calorie expense account.' Check daily meals to see that the basic four food groups are included, especially protein-rich foods such as milk, cheese, meat, poultry, fish and eggs.

If you 'nibble' between meals, be cautious in choosing foods for snack time. Crisp raw vegetables like celery, radishes and carrots are wise choices because they contain few calories. Strips of lean meat are good, too.

But remember to keep a record of 'extras' and eat a good breakfast to avoid fatigue at work and temptation to overeat at noon.

Emphasize foods that are low in calories but high in important nutrients. Food may be naturally low in calories or may be processed in some way to reduce its calorie value.

The dietary food departments in our supermarkets have grown in variety and volume. The items in these departments are usually low-calorie, low-sodium, sugar restricted or allergy foods. It is important to read the labels to know the food values as well as calorie value.

Consider cost, calories and quality when meal planning and shopping for food.

Because special dietary foods generally are produced and packed in smaller quantities that increase production and handling costs, they are higher in retail prices. Figure out whether the calories saved in low-calorie dietary foods are worth the extra cents spent. Low-calorie foods not in the dietary good department may be good buys.

Some of the dietary products show little calorie difference from their non-dietetic counterparts. Examples are dietetic tomato juice, bread and many canned vegetables.

Pay more attention to lean meats, vegetables and fruits, which are lower in calorie content.

It is important to remember that a hunger strike is not recommended to achieve weight reduction.

Eating smaller portions of all foods, cut down on fat fried foods, eliminate whipped cream and rich desserts and reduce the amount of oil dressings, and the number of calories will diminish.

A key to the calorie dilemma is fats. Oils and cream have more heat energy units than to carbohydrates and proteins of the same size. When selecting foods, choose lean meats, eggs, fish and poultry. Vegetables and fruits have the lowest amount of fat content per food group. For desserts, try the fruit type.

This is a good month to include fruit desserts because orange juice, oranges and all citrus fruits are in plentiful supply now. By planning your meals around the foods in good supply people not only save some cents but calories as well.

Choose a sensible, well-balanced diet and stay with it. Fad diets and gimmicks may allow weight loss but when old eating habits return, so does the weight.

Garden greens high in nutrition

Greens are a very common item here and are found in most every food store year round, either frozen, canned or fresh.

Local producers do an excellent job of supplying our markets with greens except for a few months out of the year. During extremely hot and freezing weather, local supplies are short and are supplemented by those from other areas.

Greens are especially nice for a change during the rounds of rich holiday foods. Cook them plain or add fresh turnips for even better taste. Fresh turnips added to canned greens will give a more pleasing effect.

If you've decided to put greens on your menu, plan to serve them, 'pot liquor' and all for full value—nutrition and money wise. The southern tradition of cooking fresh greens with bacon fat or salt pork produces a delightfully seasoned liquid called pot liquor.

The liquid left from the cooked greens has many of the food nutrients dissolved in it and makes an excellent soup, or you can use it to add flavor to most any other dish.

In addition to turnip greens you may choose mustard, spinach or collards. All of these grow well in Southern home gardens and are readily available during the fall and winter months.

Nutritionally, greens are high in vitamins A and C, as well as the important minerals calcium and iron.

When buying or selecting garden or market greens, look for crisp clean leaves with good deep green color. Always remember, the fresher the better. Avoid excessive amounts of grit or dirt.

Avoid those that are tough or fibrous and those with yellowish leaves or brown tips. Avoid greens that have soft mushy spots on the leaves, stems or roots. Inspect closely for insect damage.

Greens may be sold in bunches or prepackaged bags.

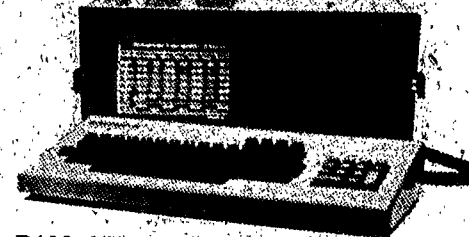

Prepackaged greens may cost a few cents more than bulk forms, but you should consider the added convenience of a trimmed, washed and easy-to-store product in making your choice.

Remember that even prepackaged, washed greens should be washed thoroughly before cooking or serving. Never soak greens but wash gently in plenty of water and lift them out of the water to free them of grit or dirt.

To preserve the quality of the greens, it is necessary that you store them properly after purchase and that they've been properly cared for from field to market. Good storage requires cold, moist conditions. For best results, store greens in a crisper or a plastic bag with ventilating holes at a temperature as near 32° as possible without freezing.

Warm temperatures cause rapid deterioration, loss of nutrients and a change from dark green color to a yellowish or brownish color.

University libraries serve as federal depository sites

When some people hear the words, "federal depository," they may think of a bank.

Though they may be somewhat correct, this depository is most often known as a Federal Depository Library.

According to Barbara Smith, recorder of documents for the Mississippi Library Commission, there are twelve depository libraries in Mississippi.

These libraries participate in the Depository Library Program established by Congress to allow free access to government publications.

Services offered through the program include government referrals, interlibrary loans and assistance in locating information.

Subjects in a federal depository range from astronomy and zoology to scuba diving and the arts.

The federal depository libraries in Mississippi include the Mississippi State Law Library in Jackson; Mississippi State University; Alcorn State University; the University of Mississippi Library and Law Library; Millsaps College; Mississippi University for Women; Delta State University; Jackson State University; the Mississippi College Law Library; the University of Southern Mississippi.

The Mississippi Library Commission also serves as a federal depository library.

Casseroles

Casseroles provide convenience and economy. Prepare several at one time and freeze some for later. Use any combination of foods that suits your fancy. Choose foods in season and use leftovers in pleasing ways for a different appearance on the dinner table. Don't limit your use of casseroles to main dishes only. Try meat and meat alternate casseroles, vegetable casseroles and dessert casseroles. To save energy, bake one of each at the same time for a complete meal.

Probably the most popular attribute of casseroles is convenience but there are others just as important. Economy is one. You can use less expensive ingredients in casseroles and leftovers just don't seem like leftovers when combined with other foods in a casserole.

For a really good casserole dish, choose those foods that look and taste well together and that your family likes. Use leftovers or planned-overs (when you've cooked extra foods to have some to use in later meals for casserole dishes).

Casseroles consist basically of a protein food (meat, fish, poultry, cheese, eggs, dried beans) combined with a liquid. Frequently a starchy food as noodles, rice or potatoes is added making a little meat or other principal ingredients go a long way.

Good ingredients make a good casserole, but you can save pennies by selecting food appropriate for your use. Canned tomatoes to go into casseroles need not be fancy, or the most expensive. Shape isn't important. In most casserole recipes, so there's no need to pay extra for it. Grated tuna usually costs less than chunk-style, but the flavor is the same.

Elegant party-type casseroles are great for buffet entertaining. Subtly seasoned, interestingly flavored, a really good casserole can be a culinary achievement suitable for any occasion where you want to serve good food and prepare it ahead of the occasion.

Here are a few points for successful casseroles: Use foods that "go together" from the standpoint of flavor, texture and color; keep pieces of food in identifiable sizes and shapes; remember that the casserole will absorb some of the liquid during baking, so don't make the sauce too thick; try layers of food rather than stirring the ingredients as one mixture; use your imagination in seasoning—try various herbs and spices; vary toppings—fluffy mashed potatoes, cooked rice, corn bread batter, ready-to-bake biscuits or rolls, roasted almonds; investigate the wide variety of canned soups for added flavor and ease of preparation.

Casserole recipes are not precise. It's up to the cook to add or subtract seasonings and other ingredients according to what the family prefers and what's on hand.

Convenient packaged casserole mixes from market shelves offer a shortcut and permit you to create your own special dish with the addition of ground beef, cooked cube meat, or hard cooked eggs. While they save time, they will cost more than home prepared casseroles.

1983—the year supermarket prices cooled off

By Ann Rushing
Marketing Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

In their 36th annual Consumer Expenditures Study report, Supermarket Business appropriately refers to 1983 as "the year supermarket prices cooled off."

The cooling off of supermarket prices has continued for the nine months since the survey period, so it's possible that shoppers have relaxed some economy measures reflected in their 1982 buying profile.

The four percent increase in grocery store sales in 1983 was the smallest annual gain since 1976. The gain was unusual in another way. It was only one percent larger than the food price increase of the year.
Historically, as more food variety and more convenience foods have become available, shoppers have increased amount of money spent at a faster pace than price increases have required.

Last year shoppers reacted to the dual threat of recession and inflation by trading down to lower priced items in some areas while trading up in others. Fresh fruit and vegetable purchases continued upward to replace some of the canned foods that would have cost less.

There was also an increase in use of low calorie specialty items and frozen gourmet dinners while lower cost frozen entrees were bought less frequently. Efforts to economize included increased buying of generic label foods and baking ingredients. Two recession-proof items of the past, beer and soft drinks, succumbed to last year's economy efforts with the smallest gains of many years.

The conflicting concerns of 1982 shoppers were reflected in the food industry. Food stores, in order to survive, continued to increase sales volume in three years; making stores bigger, offering more non-foods, and increased merchandising efficiently —including warehouse type merchandising.

As supermarkets have become bigger to survive, conflicting shopper demands have taken still another turn:
increased buying from convenience and specialty stores.
Food manufacturers reacted to last year's economy trend by introducing new new products while pushing old ones with economy or nutrition appeal.

In 1982, the average household spent $52.16 in grocery stores, an increase of $1.24 over 1981. Of the 1982 weekly purchases, $39.74 was spent for food and $12.42 for non-foods. The year's gain for food (2.2%) was smaller than that for non-foods (3.1%).

Of the $39.74 spent for food, $5.96 (15%) went for alcoholic beverages, candy, chewing gum, and coffee; $11.44 (29%) for fresh or processed meat, fresh fish, and frozen poultry;
$2.46 (6%) for frozen foods;
$3.92 (10%) for dairy products, eggs, and margarine; $5.50 (14%) for fresh fruits and vegetables; $3.22 (8%) for baked goods; and the remaining $7.24 (18%) was divided among the dozen of food items that we chose from grocery store shelves in all sizes and shapes of cans, bottles, and packages.

Dollar volume leaders, as would be expected, were for the fresh meat, fish, poultry food group with about one-fifth of total grocery store sales, followed by fresh produce with about one-tenth of total sales.

Following downward from 7 to 4 percent of sales in this order were dairy, case items, household supplies, baked goods, canned foods, alcoholic beverages, frozen foods, non-prescription health and beauty aids, and tobacco products.

Last year's ten top dollar gainers, listed in descending order, were white bread, prescriptions, cold cereal, frozen vegetables, cigarettes, toilet paper, natural cheese, packaged bacon, fresh fruit, and canned vegetables. Top dollar losers were solid pesticides, dried beans and peas, flash bulbs and cubes, sugar, peanut butter, iced tea mixes, canned grapefruit juice, flour, eggs, and canned meat.

Sales gains or losses resulted from both volume purchased and prices paid.
Dollar sales for cigarettes increased because of a series of price increases, despite a small decrease in tonnage and some switching to less expensive generic brands.

Dollars spent for peanut butter dropped because of price decreases accompanied by increased purchases. Money spent for eggs and sugar also decreased while purchases increased slightly. Canned meat, flash bulbs and cubes are examples of items that decreased both in price and volume purchased. Amounts of bacon and beer purchased decreased while dollar sales increased.

Recession and unemployment were not enough to stem the tide of eating out in 1982.
Despite price increases of food away from home, more than one-half greater than those for foods at home, tonnage of food purchased away from home increased.

What is so heartwarming on a winter's day as a fragrant bowl of onion soup, toasty bread and melted cheese encrusted, and topped with a slice of Swiss cheese? If you can't find it, you can make it. Just let me show you how. I'll be over in a minute to help you.

During the cold winter weather of the Christmas holidays, my gourmet chef of a daughter-in-law, Sue McGuire, asked our spirits, and our appetites, with huge bowls of hot onion soup, with a slice of Swiss cheese on top, and a slice of Swiss cheese on top. It's a difficult dish to make, but I'll be over in a minute to help you.

This is an old French dish, and it's a great way to speed the guests of their way, as used to be the custom at Les Halles, the market in Paris, where party goers stopped off en route home to have an invigorating cup or bowl of onion soup "for the road."

So, here's:
ONION SOUP GRATINEE
6 Tbsp. butter
6 to 8 onions, peeled, sliced thin
6 cups beef bouillon or stock
(or chicken)
French bread slices Cup or more of grated or "chunked" Swiss cheese (or Parmesan)
Sauté the onions in butter until golden, but not brown, stirring with a wooden spoon to prevent burning, cooking over low heat.

Add the broth or bouillon, diluted with water, if you wish, and simmer for 20 minutes or so. (You may want to add dashes of hot pepper sauce or Worcestershire, along with the salt and pepper.)
When this wonderfully redolent mixture is ready, ladle into oven proof bowls, float a thick slice of chartoasted French bread on it, top with Swiss cheese, and run under the broiler till the cheese gets all gooey-toasty...then, enjoy!
Some thrifty cooks of the French countryside use water instead of stock or bouillon as a base for onion soup, to get the full force of the onion flavor; but, for my part, I like the other way better.

USM announces new gift program

In the wake of almost $2.5 million in budget cutbacks over the past two years, University of Southern Mississippi officials say almost $20 million is needed to enhance academics and provide for much-needed capital improvements.

Alternative funding sources are being investigated to meet these needs because they are in areas not normally funded by state-appropriated funds, and the state continues to find itself in a short fall position in revenue resources.

The first annual giving program at USM was announced recently to provide funding for academic enhancement.

In making the announcement, USM President Dr. Aubrey K. Lucas said, "We recognize that the State of Mississippi has been just about as generous as it can be in supporting our institutions of higher learning."

"We feel that we have increased student fees considerably here at this university and at our other institutions, so we've got to look to other sources, and the principal other source is the private sector and that would be private gifts."

Title of the annual fund, is "Toward Distinction."

As one example of academic enhancement needs Lucas cited the university's need for ten fully-endowed academic chairs, each taking an endowment of $300,000, for a total of $3 million.

An endowed chair is made possible by funds given to financially support an academic chair, lending distinction and prestige to the position, the individual named to fill the chair (position) and the academic discipline.

Currently there are two partially-endowed chairs at USM, the William D. McCain Chair of History and the W. Parham Bridges Chair of Real Estate.

"We need $10 million right now to meet some critical needs here at USM in the area of capital improvement," Dr. Thomas Estes, vice-president for business and finance said.

"We need $4 million in computer equipment and facilities alone, plus we are land-locked just for the acquisition of land plus another $2.5 million to satisfy a variety of needs that will be given some type priority should funds be available anytime soon."

Estes talks in terms of parking garages, a continuing education complex and other non-traditional projects.

An outstanding faculty is one of the prime areas for funding generated under the new annual fund program.

"We are able now to attract to Mississippi distinguished outstanding faculty from other regions of the country," Lucas said, "Some of these are natives of this state who would like to come back here to do their scholarship. These moneys will allow us to provide salaries and salary supplements so we can be more attractive to these people."

Lucas said funds would also help keep some of the eminent scholars who are emerging on the USM campus.

Other uses of annual fund dollars would be faculty and student research, scholarships and fellowships for outstanding students, library improvements, faculty and staff development, and campus events involving nationally and internationally acclaimed scholars.

Estes has wasted no time in getting his "creative financing" project for capital improvements moving.

At a recent meeting on the Hattiesburg campus she assembled experts including educational administrators and financial officers representing national lending institutions, plus representatives of the State Treasury Department, Office of Attorney General and Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning.

"If USM is to make the progress we need to make over the next 10 years to meet the needs of the people of Mississippi and this region, these and other alternative methods of financing will have to be placed in the mainstream of our planning," Estes said.

Manieri of Bay St. Louis, left, performed in the holiday parade as members of the 1983 McDonald's All-American High School Band, composed of two outstanding high school musicians from each state and the District of Columbia, plus one member each from the Virgin Island and Puerto Rico. Under the direction of Dr. William Foster, director of bands at Florida A&M University, the McDonald's All-American High School Band made its 15th appearance in the nationally televised event, watched by millions of parade spectators and NBC-TV, CBS-TV and Metromedia network audiences. This year, the All-American Band also performed in the Fiesta Bowl Parade on December 31 in Phoenix, Ariz. The All-American Band program sponsored by McDonald's restaurants, was created in 1967 to recognize and reward the achievements of exceptional student musicians.
